

5. James Nicholson

Queen's University of Belfast, UK

j.r.nicholson@qub.ac.uk

Sampling and Estimation

Students traditionally find the underlying concepts in this area difficult to grasp. In collaboration with others I have been involved in developing activities exploring variation within and between samples from various distributions, and exploring properties of estimators and of confidence intervals.

This paper will illustrate some of these materials, and discuss the rationale for the approach employed. Evaluation copies of the materials will be available for delegates to take away with them.